

BJH: To my father, whose garden
was a place of wonder.

KRW: To my mother, who taught me that produce is magical.

BSM: To Mom, who taught me to plant joy.

To purchase additional copies of this book, visit squareUp.com/store/barbara-jean-hicks

MASCOT BOOKS

www.mascotbooks.com

Once Upon A Parsnip

©2016 Barbara Jean Hicks and Benjamin S. Mann. All Rights Reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form by any means electronic, mechanical, or photocopying, recording or otherwise without the permission of the author.

For more information, please contact:

Mascot Books
560 Herndon Parkway #120
Herndon, VA 20170
info@mascotbooks.com

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016902457

CPSIA Code: PRT0416A

ISBN-13: 978-1-63177-666-3

Printed in the United States

Barbara Jean Hicks

Kevin R. Wood

Pictures by Ben Mann

One day in a market in Fairy Tale Land,
two shopping trips
don't go the way
they were planned...

It all starts in Granny Hood's house in the woods, and across town in Old Bully Wolf's neighborhood.

Little Red and her granny are sipping herb tea. Mr. Wolf files his teeth while he's watching TV.

Good news, friends and neighbors! You can shop, too, where four out of five fairy godmothers do!

The Fairytale Market.

We've got what you need. You'll find what you're looking for. Fast. Guaranteed!

I need to buy apples and parsnips for lunch.

I'm feeling a need for a three-piggy brunch!